Important information regarding chaperones:

- ▶ The risks associated with the role of being a chaperone are insured under the student's AcciTravel coverage. For example, if the chaperone had to postpone his/her return due to a student's illness, the chaperone's transportation and living expenses would be covered under AcciTravel; separate coverage specifically for the chaperone would not be required. However, to cover the risks specific to the chaperone, such as a medical emergency during a school trip, separate insurance is required. If the chaperone does not have such coverage through his/her group insurance plan (or that of the spouse), it is possible to obtain travel insurance through an insurer that offers individual products, such as Quebec Blue Cross or Desjardins.

* Students covered by the public health insurance plan of his/her province of residence and who are also enrolled in an educational institution insured by FEEP's AcciTravel program.
